WITH THE GERMAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, EGER, SUDETENLAND, Oct. 3.—The unsheathed German sword is a guarantee that the Sudetenland "never again will be torn from the Reich," Chancellor Adolf Hitler told a wildly cheering crowd on his triumphant entry into Eger today.

Addressing thousands of Sudetens in the Eger market square after leading his victorious army across the old German-Czech border with the fanfare and pomp of a Roman emperor, the Fuehrer spoke briefly to the Eger population, turned out in holiday costume for the occasion.

"German people," he said, "I am greeting not only you but the entire Sudetenland, which within a few days will belong completely to the German Reich."

PA NEW OBSERVES

Speaking of birds, Mrs. A. B. Cartwright of E. County Line street, has a canary that is 12 years old. It is a good singer and sings as sweetly as in the days when it was young. Twelve years is a long time to spend in a cage, but the canary doesn't seem to mind it.

A prisoner who was up for sentence in our local courts Saturday was asked if he had ever been in any other trouble. He replied that he had, and related that he had once been apprehended for riding an unshod horse on the concrete roads. This indicates that the Humane Society must have been on the job. A horse's hoofs are pretty tough, but they will not stand much traveling on hard roads without shoes.

Here's something worth noting. Alliance, O., with a population of 23,000 has just completed a full year without a traffic death. We don't see how they did it, judging from our observation of Ohio drivers on Pennsylvania highways, but maybe they're more careful at home.

The state highway department is rushing work on the old Pittsburgh road. At least four power shovels are making the dirt fly and there is a good force of lively WPA workers on the job. It is hoped to have the road completed to the Shenango township consolidated school building before the weather breaks up.

Babson Sees Business Boom In Near Future

By ROGER W. BABSON
(Special To The News)

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 3.—Roger Babson in Europe to investigate business and war conditions, believes that the passing of the war crisis means that the long awaited business boom will now start. He said the latest turn of events justified his advice of late summer to business men to forget Europe and other sensational headlines and to pay more attention to their own jobs.

BABSON, Business in the United States, Babson continued, is 10 per cent above the low in June. This gain has come about in the face of the most depressing headlines. The purge, the war threat, and business men's pessimism have failed to halt the trend.

With the war hurdle out of the way, American business should now rise steadily. Babson predicted that business activity will top the year-ago level sometime between now and Christmas. He reports that there is great joy in London and that business has already picked up over there.

Commodity prices were kept down by fear that the government would fix prices. All such fear, he says, has now been removed so that business goes on as usual. Improvement in business in England and the Continent further brightens prospects in the United States.

Polish Troops Cross Border

LARGE NUMBERS OF CZECHS IN FLIGHT

WARSAW, Oct. 3.—More Polish troops today marched into Teschen's main thoroughfare—speedily renamed "Marshal Pilsudski street"—and took control of this rich mining and factory district on the heels of departing Czechs.

The first Polish troops, advance guard of an army of 500,000 which menaced Czechoslovakia from above the frontier, strode across the Olza river bridge at 2 p. m. yesterday. By Oct. 10 the whole Teschen area, with its many coal mines, will be occupied, and a plebiscite under international direction is to be held in other sections where there is a possible Polish majority.

Czechs Flee
Hundreds of Czechs fled from their homes and took refuge in the Moravia and Ostrava districts.

The Poles moved into Teschen with flags waving, bayonets fixed, and tanks and artillery rumbling. Flowers were thrown in the troops' path, and flags decked every building, but the soldiers' seizure of the area was more a business-like procedure than a coronation one.

As the German districts of Czechoslovakia, thousands lined the streets to greet the Poles. At each end of the bridge leading across the Olza, loud-speakers sounded Polish tunes and speeches.

A strong military regime immediately was imposed on the Teschen section, following withdrawal of Czech authorities.

Marshal Smigly-Rydz, head of the Polish army and the "strong man" of Poland, gave the order by radio for the troops to march into Czechoslovakia.

Chicago Man Is Held For Murder

Story Told By 12-Year Old Daughter Causes Arrest
For Slaying Of Wife

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—The story told by his 12-year-old daughter today led to a formal murder charge against James K. Matter, industrial engineer, for the fatal shooting of his wife.

Mrs. Marguerite Matter, 37, was slain Saturday night in the bedroom of their home in suburban Brookfield by a bullet from Matter's heavy army rifle, a relic of his World War service with a Pennsylvania regiment.

Matter, formerly of Harrisburg, Pa., claimed at first that his wife had committed suicide and his story was backed up by the eldest of their three children, Martha Jean. Later the girl was questioned by her aunts, Miss Marian Matter of Harrisburg and Mrs. Joan Markley of Detroit, and she gave them a different version.

PRAGUE, Oct. 3.—Already "invaded" by two foreign armies, and faced with the problem of caring for many thousands of refugees from Sudetenland, Czechoslovakia today practically agreed to give up hundreds of square miles of her territory to a third power, Hungary.

Under pressure of Hungary's demands, which duplicated those of Germany and Poland, the Czech government formally notified Budapest that "peaceful" negotiations regarding the Magyar minorities of about 800,000 could begin at once.

Premier Bela Imredy promptly replied with an acceptance of Czechoslovakia's offer, it was understood.

Commission To Fix Boundaries
Czechoslovakia proposed a mixed commission to fix the new boundaries by which Hungary will be enlarged. Newspapers in Budapest said that one zone, thickly populated by Magyars, will be occupied immediately by Hungarian troops. A second area, according to information in Budapest, will be taken over by international troops, and in a third, a plebiscite will be held.

Prague's third capitulation to outside pressure came following a note from Budapest pointing out Hungary's right to claim self-determination for the Hungarian minorities.

That the Budapest note was couched in friendly terms, however, was confirmed in both capitals; and this fact aroused a tempest of criticism in Hungary.

Nazi propaganda led to the storm of protest in Hungary, and the government there found it necessary to confiscate the Nazi organ "Magyar-Set" for demanding war against the Czechs.

Other papers called for the resignation of Premier Imredy's government to make way for "good Hungarians."

It was "nonsense," wrote Kalman Hubay, member of the Hungarian parliament in "Magyar-Set," to hope that the Magyar minorities issue could be settled peacefully with the Czechs.

ONLY ARMISTICE
DECLARES ATLEE

By KINGSBURY SMITH

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Amidst opposition jeers, and in the face of a flat declaration that Great Britain should have gone to war against Germany, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain defended the Munich agreement today as laying the foundation for permanent European peace.

The prime minister hailed his compromise as having averted a "stark and terrible" catastrophe "which would have ended civilization as we have known it."

In answer to Alfred Duff-Cooper, who resigned as first lord of the admiralty, and in a speech to the House of Commons this afternoon said that Britain should have fought to escape the stigma of "treachery and perfidy" to Czechoslovakia, Chamberlain said:

"I have nothing to withdraw or regret."

To Extend Credit
The prime minister announced plans for an immediate $50,000,000 credit to Prague and for a future $150,000,000 international loan, and declared that to make its diplomacy effective Britain must "build up deficiencies in our armaments and our defensive preparations."

Major Clement R. Atlee, labor opposition leader, then launched an attack on Chamberlain's policies, branding the Munich agreement as "only an armistice."

"It was a shameful betrayal of the Czechs," he added. "It was not a victory for reason and humanity, but a victory for brute force."

"Events of the last few days constituted one of the greatest diplomatic defeats this country and France have ever sustained."

Confident Threat Of War In

(International News Service)

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt isolated himself in his family home here on the Hudson today, confident that the threat of an ugly European war had been removed.

With the passing of the war clouds the president again turned his attention to domestic politics, mindful that next month's congressional election will indicate the nation's latest reaction to the new deal.

Primarily, Mr. Roosevelt was interested in the elections in his home state of New York. The whole country will be watching the empire state results on November 8 because Thomas E. Dewey, famed racket prosecutor, is heading the Republican ticket for governor against Herbert H. Lehman, who was persuaded to seek a fourth term.

According to temporary headquarters here, the president had no engagements and sought merely to relax after nearly three weeks of minute-by-minute attention to the menacing international situation.

the corridors outside were crowded
Saturday night when the Lawrence County committee held a meeting of committeemen and workers. It was the largest meeting of the campaign thus far.

Captain Roger W. Rowland, county chairman of the Republican party, presided and introduced the speakers. "This campaign can be won by the Republicans," said Captain Rowland. "The people are tired of the whitewashing party now going on in Harrisburg, tired of the sidestepping of real issues by the Democrats. They promised things they knew they couldn't deliver and never expected to try."

Attorney J. Elder Bryan, candidate for the General Assembly from the first district was the first speaker. He scored the increased taxes on industries, quoted from the Dent report to show that industries had left the state because of the Democratic plan of soaking them and urged support of the entire Republican ticket.

W. Sharp Fullerton, candidate for the General Assembly from the second district, followed.

Grand Jury Probe Delay Is Likely

Further Moves Expected In Effort To Halt Grand Jury Hearing

BARD MAY APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Oct. 2.—The supreme court decisions invalidating legislation which attempted to halt a grand jury investigation of the Erie administration may not mean the immediate resumption of grand jury proceedings, it appeared here today. The legislature and the administration still held a few "trump cards."

Under Bill 3 which the supreme court provisionally ruled constitutional, Attorney General Guy K. Bard was expected to present formal argument on his right to supersede District Attorney Carl B. Shelley as soon as the Dauphin county grand jury is reconvened by Judge Paul N. Schaeffer.

See Delay
It was expected that Judge Schaeffer will then, acting under provisions of the act and today's ruling, direct Bard to stand aside as he has already ruled he believes Bard is not qualified to act in Shelley's place, provided he holds Shelley unqualified to act as prosecutor. Schaeffer then would name an attorney from another county to act in Shelley's place.

Bard, however, was seen ready to appeal to the supreme court in such an event. Such an appeal, the act provides, "shall automatically stay all proceedings until the supreme court shall have determined the appeal."

That would mean a certain amount of delay and in that time the house investigating committee might be able to complete its own investigation before the grand jury probe opened.

May Try New Move
And with the grand jury apparently ready to proceed with its investigation, the legislature still has an "ace" up its sleeve, an act which was introduced in the house along with the other grand jury bills but which was never pressed to a conclusion. That measure provides for "open" grand jury proceedings when public officials are involved.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3.—Gov. George H. Earle today lost his long, bitter battle to prevent a grand jury investigation of serious charges against himself and his administration and Democratic party leaders as the state supreme court outlawed two of the three acts he rushed through a special session of the legislature.

The third act, that giving Attorney General Guy K. Bard the right to supersede District Attorney Carl B. Shelley of Dauphin county in conducting the grand jury investigation was upheld but the court ruled that before the district attorney's ineligibility must be fully proved to its satisfaction.

To accomplish this, it directed Judge Paul N. Schaeffer of Berks county, specially assigned to the case, to hear further testimony.

Bard Not To Conduct Investigation
Bard, however, the decision made clear, will not personally conduct the grand jury investigation. The supreme court, in the decision written by Judge Horace Stern, expressed the opinion he could not under any circumstances perform his duties impartially because he is an appointee of the governor and subject to dismissal by him. Instead, the court points out, the act provides that if such is the case, the court below shall appoint an attorney from another

Supreme Court Opens New Term

One Vacancy Exists In Court As Result Of Death Of Cardozo

SEVERAL NEW DEAL DECISIONS NEAR

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Fresh attacks of far-reaching New Deal measures confronted the supreme court as that powerful tribunal formally opened an eight months' term today.

Confident that the court has definitely turned "liberal" in its interpretation of the federal constitution, New Deal officials viewed the new term with an air of satisfaction.

As the black-robed justices gathered with Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, one chair was vacant. The vacancy caused by the death of the late Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo has not been filled.

Vacancy Exists.

President Roosevelt, it was generally expected, will permit the vacancy to continue until congress meets in January so that the senate may confirm his nomination speedily.

The outstanding New Deal case before the tribunal is the appeal of 16 utilities assailing constitutionality of the power expansion program of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

While the court on one occasion ruled 8 to 1 in favor of TVA, the decision was limited in scope. The utilities hope to present a different picture by showing how far-reaching is the power program. They contend that power, and not navigation or flood control, is the real object of TVA.

The court's docket includes many cases which involve their interpretation of the national labor relations act or validity of board decisions.

REPUBLICANS ASSAIL STATE ADMINISTRATION

and district pleaded for a General Assembly with judgment and brought the house down when he said "I have been asked my opinion in the matter of married women teaching school. I don't know whether I will make or lose votes by my views but I cannot see the logic in having a married woman whose husband is working, teaching school when there are so many girls unable to get teaching positions."

The last speaker of the evening, Attorney Louis E. Graham of Beaver, candidate for Congress was introduced by Attorney Robert L. Wallace. "This is the time for all Republicans to get together," said Mr. Wallace. "Personally I was for Gilford Pinchot in the primary but he did not win. You can't win every time out. The ticket this year is composed of men of ability and judgment and every Republican can support the candidates honestly."

He then gave a brief resume of Mr. Graham's career as an attorney, a district attorney of Beaver County, deputy attorney general and Federal district attorney.

Reviews Legislation.

In his address Mr. Graham reviewed some of the "must" legislation forced upon the Congress by President Roosevelt and their subsequent fate before the Supreme Court. "Roosevelt's record has been one of continued rabble rousing," said Mr. Graham.

"First he attacked the banks, then industry, then the Supreme Court. In spite of the constitutional guarantees that the executive, legislative and judicial departments of government must be equally important he has attempted to subvert the legislative and judicial to his will."

"He tried to make you believe that the Supreme Court invalidated great hosts of laws. The record is this. Since its organization the Supreme Court has passed upon 55,000 laws. Of this number only 74 have been declared unconstitutional and of the 74 only 11 of them have been by a vote of 5-4. Thirty of them were by unanimous vote."

Speaking of a relief program he said, "It would be a sin and a shame to stop relief until such time as the need for relief has been superseded by jobs."

Joseph Ominsky, D., Philadelphia, was held in abeyance due to pronounced opposition from Democratic legislators. It passed first reading, however, is now in committee, and can be restored whenever the administration so desires.

Administration leaders in the legislature previously indicated they were prepared to move for passage of the measure in the event the supreme court declared the grand jury bills unconstitutional.

Necessary Votes?

But whether the administration could marshal the necessary votes to enact the bill—especially in the senate where the grand jury bills passed by only slim margins—was another question.

In the event the bill providing for open grand juries should pass, District Attorney Shelley would either have to conduct his grand jury investigation in the open or appeal to the supreme court. That would necessitate another delay for an appeal would automatically halt the grand jury proceedings.

Even should Shelley abide by the act's provisions and conduct the grand jury probe in the open, as the house investigation is now being conducted, the proceedings could still be halted, it was believed, by any citizen who cared to question the legality of the act by appeal to the supreme court.

Announcement of an enrollment of 648 students at Westminster college is a matter of more than ordinary interest, not only to the people of New Wilmington, but to this city and county as a whole. Many of these students come long distances to enjoy the advantages of this high educational institution. There is no good reason for young people to go away to school with such good college facilities right here at home. Westminster enjoys a high standing among the colleges of the United States, and the student who walks out with a sheepskin really has something.

Furnace repair men are on the rush these days. It seems that a lot of people didn't take Pa New's advice last summer to have their furnaces repaired. They're paying up for it now by having to wait on the repair men, and they don't get the discount on their bills that were offered last summer.

According to a survey made by the Pennsylvania Department of agriculture, machines are now responsible for more accidents on the farm than animals. Lawrence county folks will recall that there were a number of machine accidents here during the past summer. There were also several caused by animals, the most serious occurring at Edensburg, where an aged man was sore to death by a bull, and another man was injured in the case of machine accidents. The department finds that they were due largely to failures to observe fundamental rules of safety. To avoid machine accidents, however, never clean or oil machinery in motion, keep hands and feet clear of moving parts, and see that shields on machines are always in their proper place.

One of the most beautiful beds of azaleas owned by anyone in this district is that of Alvin Bernhardt, of Edensburg. Mr. Bernhardt has 45 plants, each of which covers an area as large as a washbasin, which contain from 650 to 800 blooms on each plant. It is impossible to see the leaves or stems of the plant because of the flowers, Mr. Bernhardt states.

Evidently looking for the dog biscuits, a playful pup wandered into a downtown store today. After exploring the first floor and investigating the merchandise, the dog scampered down to the basement.

The first frost of the season occurred Sunday morning, when the temperature dropped a little below the freezing point, but no serious damage resulted to crops and flowers, a survey reveals. It did start leaves to dropping on trees which shed early.

utterance to the esteem and regard in which it has held men and women of the city who have been leaders in various walks of life. Individually the citizens have admired and respected achievement, but as a city we have sometimes neglected to co-ordinate such admiration in a public expression.

Public expression of such esteem may have no material or intrinsic value, but the sentiment, the spirit of good-will engendered and the feeling of municipal fellowship that is promoted have a value far beyond that which any dollar sign can appraise.

As representatives of citizens of New Castle, in the office of mayor and city council, we are convinced the public honoring of outstanding citizens should be done from time to time to the end that they may know in a definite way the high esteem in which they are held.

Therefore, be it resolved, that a day in the first week of November be, and is hereby set aside as "Distinguished Citizens Day" for the purpose of publicly honoring those distinguished citizens who most merit the appreciation of our citizenry.

And be it further resolved, that Tuesday, November 1, be, and the same is, hereby designated as the day for such observance, in the year 1938, and for the purpose of carrying out such intention the following committee be, and the same is, hereby appointed: George W. Muse, Bernard N. Hanson, Ivor V. Davis.

an oath to the Sudetenland that it will never again be torn from the Reich.

"Over the Reich lies our shield of protection, and protecting all is the German sword."

United Germany

"The entire German nation stands behind you. A united Germany has been overjoyed by the developments of these recent days. Not only you but the entire German nation is jubilant. Your happiness is the happiness of the rest of the seventy-five millions in the Reich. Massed together, we shall all march into the great German future."

"We thank the Almighty for his blessings in the past and beg his blessing for us in the future, Deutschland, Sieg Heil, Sieg Heil, Sieg Heil!"

The crowd was wild with joy and the spontaneity of its cheering was manifest. His words were almost drowned out by the lusty cheering on several occasions.

Moves In With Troops

Clearly showing his pride and emotion as the Reich he rules expanded before his very eyes, Adolf Hitler today moved with his troops into the Sudetenland.

Through a mountain pass lined with thousands of hysterically joyous Sudeten Germans who braved a rainstorm to greet him, the Fuehrer drove into Czechoslovakia on the heels of 50,000 marching men.

His triumphant entry began at Wildenau, in the forested region

FAITH

Some of our beautifully laid out farms will look like the old-fashioned crazy patch comforts after a few years of wheat control by the government. All good farmers have their fields planned so as to rotate their crops, but now since the government tells them how much wheat to sow, they may want to put in a 10-acre field and get orders that they can only plant 8-16. By the time three years is up they will have a lot of little patches.

Again we wonder just what agreement the government has with the Lord that there will be a certain amount of wheat grow on each acre, as we all know they slipped up a little on this when they tried to control the pigs and the cotton. It seems as though the didn't work with them at that time.

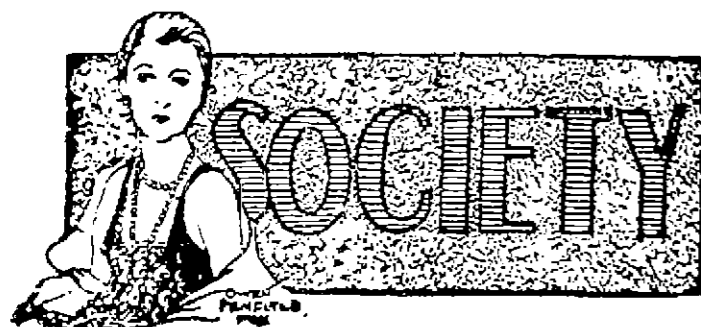

But, if we shouldn't have any wheat on account of bad weather or some other cause, it will be a good thing for our dear friends across the water who are getting most of our money now on account of low tariffs, as this would give them an opportunity to sell us some more wheat.

Jean Ball And Hugh D. Graham Married In Church Ceremony

One of the first brides of the autumn season was Miss Jean Elizabeth Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Ball, East Washington street, who became the bride of Hugh David Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Graham, Wallace avenue, on Saturday at high noon in the Third U. P. church.

The Rev. Chester T. R. Yeates, pastor of the church, officiated with the single ring ceremony before an altar of ferns, palms and Cathedral candles.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, John M. Ball, III. She was attired in a street length gown of teal blue transparent velvet and wore a doll hat decorated with ostrich plume tips. Her accessories were of rust and she carried a colonial bouquet of rose buds, lilies of the valley and asters.

The couple was unattended. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ball chose an autumn brown street length gown with matching accessories. Mrs. Graham wore a poufy blue gown with matching accessories. Both had shoulder corsages of gardenias.

A 15-minute program of nuptial music was played by Miss Kathryn Newbury, the church organist, preceeding the ceremony. Included among the selections were "Liebestraum", "Toujour, L'amour, Toujour", "I Love You Truly" and "Lohengrin's Wedding March". "O Promise Me" was played softly during the ceremony.

A congratulatory period and reception was held in the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony for the immediate families and relatives. A buffet luncheon was served. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake and crystal candelabra on which were tied mouline and white wedding bells. The home was beautifully decorated with fall flowers.

The couple, popular among the younger set, have been feated at a number of parties during the past month. They received an array of lovely gifts which were displayed in a room at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride attended the local high school and was associated with the Bell Telephone company. The bridegroom was graduated from Westminster college, the University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh Law school and Harvard university. He is a Phi Pi Phi member and a member of the Lawrence County Bar association. Mr. Graham is associated with a local law firm of prominence, Jamison, Matthews, Matheny and Graham.

For travelling, Mrs. Graham chose a mauve tone tailored creation with rust accessories and wore a chubbly fox fur jacket. Her shoulder corsage was of orchids. After a trip through Canada and the New England states, Mr. and Mrs. Graham will be at home at 215 East Wallace avenue.

Relatives and friends attended from Pittsburgh, Chicago, Franklin, Ellwood City and other points.

PRACTICAL PROBLEMS NEED PRACTICAL SOLUTIONS

I receive a great many letters telling of the child from six to twelve who "won't help at the house". "When I ask my boy to help me, he grumbles and complains," is the frequent statement.

Any parent who has such troubles will discover one or all of the following conditions: The help requested of the child is indefinite. He feels his labor has no end. For when one task is ended, another just as unattractive is awaiting him. Why should he wholeheartedly do this one only to face another more distasteful still? Anyway, by being disagreeable enough he may be able to wriggle out of any one or all of them. An argument also has a fascination for him, particularly since his batting average is high.

When this child, boy or girl, is coerced to do a certain task, the emotional tension has been high. More of such emotional pains than pleasures are associated, therefore, with the whole array of home chores. Almost always the range has spread from a calm request to request with a whine, to a charging of the child with lack of co-operation, lack of appreciation, even lack of love for the parent. Finally a positive command, "You must," with a threat which may or may not be carried out. The situation then may culminate in a quarrel between the child and parent of a nature wholly infantile.

To my fellow parent facing such a problem, I say this: make up your mind to be practical. Decide upon one or two simple definite chores for this child, which you are sure he can do well, will know when each has been done well, and which you know you can make him do. Count the cost first, and the probability of your success, your must succeed. This indicates that you must be able to provide necessary consequences to compel present obedience and continued obedience. Accordingly, he will know exactly what he will have to do and what time he can have wholly as his own.

Naturally you will expect far less of him in terms of the number of things done than you had expected before. Not what he should do but what you can get him to do systematically, regularly on his own responsibility, and, therefore, with out needless emotional storm by you or him.

You will have succeeded, then, when he always does them without a reminder from you. Once these have been established to "run alone," a very few more tasks may gradually be added. Also the tensions may have so subsided that he will occasionally volunteer and be ready to co-operate when you make a few requests for extra help.

But remember, you are going to draw the line clearly between requests and commands. When you ask him to do something you are going to honor his decision as you would have done were he an adult guest. You are not going to get "mad" if he chooses not to accede to your request. You are not going to change a request to a command in the same situation. After there's the rub! Your soul's on trial when you attempt to follow such a principle. I can think of nothing harder. But I know it works, for I have tried it.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

CHANGE OF NAME.

What's in a name and what is it?

No newspaper reporter chronicled the event when he who is now known as "Wrong-way Corrigan" changed his name from "Clyde" to "Doug".

Corrigan did abandon his Christian name of Clyde when he was ten years old. There were two reasons why he did this. Corrigan, when he was ten years old, was living in San Antonio, Texas. He was selling newspapers. He was also interested in the movies, particularly the pictures made by Douglas Fairbanks. Fairbanks happened to be in San Antonio, personally, at this time and about flabbergasted Corrigan by buying a paper from him on the street, giving him a dime and telling him to keep the change.

Very soon after this Corrigan's father abandoned his mother and himself and left them to struggle the best way they could to keep body and soul together. The father's name was Clyde and the mother just could not continue to call her son any longer by the name of Clyde, so Clyde up and says: "All right, call me Doug."

Since then Corrigan has seen every picture that Douglas Fairbanks and his son have made. He visited the B. K. O. Studio recently and saw Douglas Jr. making a picture. The two Dougs thereupon met each other and this was many years after Corrigan had met Douglas, Sr.

Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., no longer appears on the screen. No more do his athletic stunts captivate children as well as grown-ups, as they once did. Douglas, Jr. has taken his place.

The burning question now is: Which one of the Dougs is going to be remembered the longest?

HINTS and DINTS

Sun sets tonight 5:40. Sun rises tomorrow 5:58.

Getting to the top is a big job, but staying there is a great deal harder. There is always some one trying to bump you off.

For years some people have thought dictators, or those trying to be such are nuts. Now they are sure of it.

When a program for men only is announced, do you think any of the girls listen? Neither do we!

OH YOU DO! I dare you to put this on page 4.

Mr. Dill: (telling dirty jokes all evening in front of club members) "Ha ha isn't that a good one?"

Mr. Sill: "I've read that one in the Hints and Dints before."

Mr. Dill: "Well, where do you think I've got all those other ones through the Ladies Aid Society?"

We hope after all the war talk is over we will run a platform of "He kept us out of war!"

WHY THE GUEST LEFT EARLY Isn't this roast beef? Dad?" asked Willie at dinner when a guest was present.

"Why yes, what of it, son?"

"Well, didn't you tell mother this morning you were going to bring home a muttonhead for dinner?"

Those who eat any old way seem to enjoy the grub far more than those who follow the etiquette rules laid down by those seem to suffer while they nibble.

Hi Hum says he prefers a train trip to the auto because the engineer doesn't ride with his arm around a blond and a belly full of gin.

ALL FOR CHARITY At the party the charming maiden and the handsome young man had been playing one of those old-fashioned games with forfeits, and the girl had been ordered to give the young man ten kisses.

"Let's see," she said, pausing for breath. "That's seven, isn't it?"

"Only six," he corrected. "Seven, I think."

"Look here," said the girl wearily, "sooner than have any argument we'd better start all over again."—Elks Magazine.

It developed during the war talk that Italy has a king and the king is named Benito. It is his country was dragged into war. And that was not all, he was going to quit and give the job a prince or sumpkin who would not stand for the king just being nothing.

Of course women are superior. The smallest and dumbest woman can wreck the strongest and smartest man.

Reader's Question Answered Dear Miss Markel—Will you kindly suggest what would be proper attire for men of the wedding party at an afternoon wedding in early October? Could the same attire be worn at a 6 o'clock dinner following the wedding?

Answer—If it is to be a formal wedding, formal daytime dress is necessary—entirely coat with striped trousers, etc., etc. If the wedding will be informal, they may wear dark business suits. The bridegroom, his attendants and the bride's father should be dressed alike.

Yes. The same clothes will be entirely correct at a 6 o'clock dinner. The members of the bridal party do not go home to change their clothes before the reception, regardless of the time or the clothes.

A court in West Va., held that when a patient dies on an operating table the insurance company is not responsible for double indemnity. Down the long flax I hear the iterate calling of the crow: "Caw! Caw!" he cries and then again, "Caw! Caw!"

I say to him, "Oh, puhaw! Bird of the dusky wing and sabie cloak."

Why must you croak? I hate your evil prophecies. I hate your everlasting prate. Cheer up, and sing. Old thing!"

But no, he will not, maybe cannot, so I fancy that it's sad to be a crow.

Ford Recalls Big Mistake
Peace Mission Was Fruitless
Germans Were Most Friendly

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 3.—

This latest war scare distinctly recalls Henry Ford, and his celebrated peace trip. It's a safe bet that he'll not finance another one, whatever befalls. Henry generally is pretty cock-sure of his own judgment's soundness, but he admitted frankly that that was once his mortal machinery slipped. It was, as he expressed it, the "worst mistake he ever made." I was along on that cruise—as a press correspondent. So was William C. Bullitt, our ambassador to France, then as a reporter. So was Emil Burja, the New Deal's chief statistician. He classed as a college student then. So was Judson King, now director of the National Popular Government League; he was a peace delegate. And there are a few other survivors, including Ford himself, and Rozsika Schwimmer, who inspired the expedition. Louis P. Lochner was one. He was the tour's publicity manager. Today he's a news correspondent in Germany—a good one, too. We correspondents fought him like wild cats on that cruise, because we insisted on treating it as a colossal joke and he wanted it handled seriously. He's a capable newspaperman, for all that.

GERMANS FRIENDLY The funny thing is that Germany, of all countries, was quite friendly to the peace tour. Who'd have thought it? Warlike Germany—in sympathy with so pacifistic an attempt!

Yet it's understandable. The peace party traversed the Fatherland in very early 1916. At that stage of the game the Germans had done most of the winning. They were quite willing to "take their gains" and quit fighting (with themselves as victors), if the Allies would admit that they were licked.

I take the Germans to be somewhat humorless, for they wouldn't have assured that those tourists could have any real influence.

But they did assume it.

The Fordites, crossing the Atlantic from Hoboken to Christiania, Norway (now Oslo), crossed the Scandinavian peninsula to Stockholm, chased down the peninsula and across the Sound to Copenhagen, ferried themselves across to German Warnemunde, were warmly received, were railroaded comfortably on to the Dutch frontier, and were passed, with best wishes, into Holland, whence they sailed for home.

Several German spokesmen made speeches to the "peaceers," aboard the latter's train—as pacifistic speeches as could have been desired.

However, at Benthem, on the Dutch side of the frontier, there was a fight between a few of the Ford peace delegates and the Ford newspaper correspondents, which German observers witnessed.

I considerably soured German sentiment on the genuineness of the whole expedition.

TOO MUCH FRICTION There was more friction between American peace delegates and newspapermen during their stay at The Hague, before the return voyage to the United States. It cured the Germans of their peace expedition.

It was a mighty well-meant expedition.

I believed in it.

My managing editor, assigning me to accompany the "peaceers," said: "I know it's a joke, but in its time, I suppose every great movement was a joke."

The whole thing, then and now, is and was ridiculous.

Henry Ford spent more than $500,000 on his peace expedition.

The late Gaston Plantefort, Ford's business manager on the expedition, told me so at The Hague in early January, 1916. And the expedition still had a voyage back to pay for, from The Hague to Hoboken.

They Have To Be Happy

Washington, Oct. 2.

THE DRAFTING of Gov. Herbert Lehman as a candidate for the fourth time in New York marks the moribund end of a long series of futile, and at times, absurd, political maneuvers by the White House politicians. To those who know the facts, the exhibits the complete hollowing of two ideas quite widely cherished up to about two months ago, but now pretty well shot to pieces.

THE first of these was that the White House might be irresistible in party politics; the second, that the little group of acrimonious "forward-looking" advisers who exert so much influence with Mr. Roosevelt are really men of discernment and ability. In politics they have definitely proved to be smarter rather than smart, and nowhere has this been quite so clearly shown as in New York. Because, notwithstanding that "I am very happy" message he sent to the convention, the Lehman nomination is a most unpleasant dose to the President personally and the very last thing his "board of strategy" wanted or expected.

IF this time last year it had been so much as suggested that they would first have to plead with Governor Lehman to run again, and then cheer the man and applaud his record, they would have heeded in decision. At that time Governor Lehman, who in August had taken a firm and effective stand against Mr. Roosevelt's effort to pack the Supreme Court, was the chief target of the infuriated White House sharpshooters. He was deluged with denunciations by inspired New Deal spokesmen, disparaged both personally and politically in various ways. Some of those now shouting "How happy we are!" a short time ago said he had stabbed his friend (Mr. Roosevelt) in the back, and that he would go out of the Governor's office a discredited and dishonored man. They were going to see to it that the vice anti-Court Packing Democratic Senators did not come to the convention.

GOLF NEVER LETS GO

I had decided yesterday

To give my golf clubs all away

And never more the game to play.

Grown older by another year

I saw the season's end draw near

Devoid of anything to cheer.

Despite the times that I had played

The counsels wise I had obeyed

Not once a decent score I'd made.

All year I went from bad to worse.

With naught but anguish to rehearse

And memories of loss to nurse.

Today, though why I cannot tell

I found that I was driving well

My putts—both short and long ones—fell!

My brasses shots had zip and zing!

At last I'm sure I've got the swing!

And I'll be back again next spring.

Employ Trucks For Airport Job

Councilman Dunlap Requests

Drafting Of New Tax Labor Bill

Council met in the city building today and concurred with the recommendation of City Engineer G. R. Throop that eight trucks and drivers be employed, pursuant to an agreement with the WPA on the Airport project being put through by the city, county and WPA. The cost to the city will be $2,010.35. The trucks will start hauling material Tuesday so the black-top on the runways may be laid before poor weather sets in.

Of the trucks, two are from the city, the others from the county. Questioned as to why there were so few city trucks Engineer Throop said that in putting through the sidewalk project it had been necessary to lay off 15 men because of the city's inability to secure trucks.

New Castle Boy In Army Meets Local Veteran Of Years Service In West

William H. Jones, of Rigby Post Office, received an interesting letter a few days ago, from his son, Will, from San Francisco, when about to sail aboard the U. S. A. Transport Republic, on his way to his station in Hawaii. Will enlisted in the U. S. Army service in July. While flying in for cats at army headquarters in San Francisco Will mentioned something about being from New Castle to his buddy next to him, and an old army service man, heard him, came forward and asked if he was from New Castle, Pa. The tears coursed down his cheeks, when the answer came, "Yes!" He said his name was Albert Long, and had worked in the Sherrill Works cold roll department.

He asked the young recruit if he knew William H. Jones, also giving his "mom de blime" and Will answered "yes, that's my father." The old soldier during meal time came over and tenderly put sugar and milk in the recruits coffee and otherwise gave him some special attention. After the meal was over he took Will aside, and they sat on a bench, while they talked about old New Castle and its people, also gave the latter some good advice for his army service.

Albert Long has been in the army service twenty seven years and hopes to serve three more years, when he will be pensioned. He said he remembered Tommy Dickey, Charlie McGrath, Dave Lewis, Bert Sanford and some others.

The Great Game Of Politics

book. Any suggestion that the President, personally, would make overtures, which he did a few days ago to Mr. Lehman would have been scornfully treated.

THOSE who think there is exaggeration here can refresh their memory by reading the newspaper files covering the months immediately following the Lehman court declaration. They will discover that these are understatement rather than overstatements. The bitterness was very great in New Deal circles, and there was no pretense that Mr. Roosevelt did not share it. The most recent indication was the calculated slur in his Kentucky speech concerning budget-balancing Governors. That was aimed directly at Governor Lehman and so interpreted. But long before that the bright boys of the New Deal Trust "took hold" of the New York situation, with the idea that Governor Lehman's public career had ended. Their first gubernatorial candidate was the rocky young Mr. Robert H.

Jackson, who at once began to see himself not only as Governor of New York but President of the United States.

AFTER Mr. Farley's large flat foot crushed the Jackson boom, the "board of strategy" brought out another candidate in the person of Mr. Harry Hopkins, head of the WPA, and now a recognized political factor. The Hopkins boom did not get as far as the Jackson boom. There was literally no response and the strategists then decided it would be better to go along with Mr. Farley's plan of drafting Senator Wagner. In the meantime, without asking anybody's permission, Governor Lehman announced his candidacy for the short term Senatorship. The notion of having the Governor in the Senate was not pleasing to the White House but there was nothing that could be done about it. The Lehman strength was such that his nomination and election were conceded. Failing to get Senator Wagner's consent to run, the Farley machine then turned to Representative Reed, but swung away when the Republican nomination of Mr. Dewey became assured.

THAT really did alarm both Mr. Farley and the "inner circle" strategists. It was quite clear that the Dewey candidacy meant the Republicans would carry New York in November against any second-string Democratic candidate. Loss of New York in 1938 with the Presidential campaign looming ahead would be serious. Coming on top of the damaging failure of the great Senatorial purge it would be a devastating demonstration of political impotence, a sure sign that New Deal party dominance is a thing of the past. There are reasons to believe this is true, anyhow, but a November defeat in New York would make it unmistakably clear. Hence, the almost frantic appeal to Governor Lehman to save the situation. It is interesting that this is the second appeal of this sort made on behalf of the White House to Governor Lehman. The first was in 1936 made by Mr. Roosevelt personally, the second, this week, was made by his political representatives and Postmaster General. In between, the New Dealers closest to the President have abused Governor Lehman like a pickpocket and even now, while they shout his praise, they have him in their hearts. Their "happiness" is wholly hypocritical. They have to be happy.

Funeral Service For Conway Tearle

(International News Service)
HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.—Private funeral services were to be held this afternoon for Conway Tearle, 60, former silent era movie star, who died in a hospital after long suffering from a heart ailment.
Mr. Tearle, whose career started at the age of 14, was a pop singer on the American and English stage before he entered the movies in 1914. The actor went into an eclipse when the talkies came and he returned to the stage. His hit in "Dinner at Eight" on Broadway caused a new demand for his services at the studios.
He is survived by his widow, Adele Rowland, former musical comedy star. Mr. Tearle was married twice previously, his first wife being the late Josephine Park and his second Mrs. Menges Corwinhill.

Arab Rebels Kill 21 Jews In Attack

One Of Worst Outrages In Two Years Of Violent Terrorism Reported

(International News Service)
JERUSALEM, Oct. 3.—In one of the worst outrages in more than two years of violent terrorism, 21 Jews were killed during the night by Arab rebels during an attack on Jewish quarters at Tiberias.

Eighty-eight persons, most of them Arabs, lost their lives in three major battles over the week end, authorities estimated today.

One hundred Arabs, it was asserted, pounded down on Tiberias and carried out a regular house-to-house massacre. Of the 21 Jews slain there, seven were children. Four of the rebels were killed.

The attack lasted for two hours. The rebels indiscriminately slaughtered men, women and children with rifles and daggers. It was charged. They then set fire to the Tiberias synagogue and government buildings.

Former U. S. Army Radio Expert Gained 12 Pounds Taking "Vendol"

Says there is no better medicine to make a person feel like new than this great Alkaline Herbal Compound. Now is time to take a few bottles.

Mr. Ephrem J. Baron, for many years a Radio Instructor in the U. S. Army, a widely known citizen, gives his experience with Vendol hoping to help many in this city obtain the same wonderful relief from their sickness. He says:

"My appetite was so dull and my digestion so weak that even what I ate turned sour in my stomach, bloated me with gas and caused acid reflux and palpitation. I lost 12 pounds and looked thin and pale. My nerves were unmanageable. I suffered, restless sleep and I often had heartaches and felt bilious and dizzy. All of my troubles can be traced to constipation."

"I tried different medicines but none seemed to get to the bottom of my troubles but Vendol did. After taking five bottles I gained 12 pounds and my health was restored. I feel like a new man. My appetite was sharpened. Then I found I could eat hearty meals with me."

after-effects. I regained the 12 pounds I had lost and now feel so full of vim and vigor, I don't hesitate in recommending Vendol to any weak and suffering person who reads this.

If you need a good, safe, reliable medicine, get Vendol without delay from your nearest drugist. It is highly recommended here by New Castle Drug, Eckerd's and People's.

May Not Indict New York Man In "Mercy Slaying" Case

Husband Held Pending Probe

Says Wife Asked That Gas Be Piped Into Her Room

ILLNESS MAY HAVE CAUSED HER DEATH

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The microscope and test tube to be employed today in examining the blood of the cancer-ridden Mrs. Jennie Johnson will determine whether her husband, Harry, will be indicted as her "mercy slayer."

Because of doubt whether the 67-year-old wife of the wealthy retired real estate broker died from cancer or the effect of the illuminating gas with which he flooded her room, the blood examination was to be made.

At Wife's Request
In the prison ward of Meadowbrook hospital lies Johnson, suffering from a severe heart attack, saying he was ready to face the electric chair for the deed he persists he committed at his wife's request to put her out of misery.

"If I were faced with the same situation I'd do the same thing again," he told his son, Harry, Jr., who pleaded with his attorney, Martin W. Littleton, for permission to attend his wife's funeral, to be held tomorrow.

The fumes piped into Mrs. Johnson's room had been admitted by a garden hose strung into the room from a large gas vent in the cellar. There was a possibility, according to authorities, that the cancerous growths might have attained fatal proportions before the fumes brought death.

Yom Kippur Will Be Observed Here

Special Services Arranged At Tifereth Israel And Temple Israel Synagogue

The plaintive music of Kol Nidre will usher in Yom Kippur or the Day of Atonement at sun-down, Tuesday, October 4th. On this holiday, the most solemn occasion in the Jewish year, devout Jews abstain from all food and drink and spend the day in the synagogue in prayer, meditation, and supplication for forgiveness.

From biblical days, when this holiday was the occasion for special sacrifices and prayers in the Temple, Yom Kippur has carried with it an irresistible appeal for all Jews. It brings to a close the ten days of penitence which began last week on Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, and its conclusion marks God's forgiveness for past sins and His blessing for the coming year.

The Day of Atonement is distinguished from most other holidays in that it is associated with no historical event. The day is purely an attempt at self-regeneration and at-one-ment with God. Before the beginning of the present era, when the Temple in Jerusalem stood, the high purposes of the day were expressed in rituals of animal sacrifice, the common form of worship in the ancient world. Since the year 70, however, the central theme of the ritual has been Penitence, Prayer, and Charity.

The melody of Kol Nidre is heard at the evening service. This ancient and plaintive melody, together with the prayer of repentance, the sound of the Shofar or ram's horn, the twenty-four hour fast and the promise of Divine forgiveness, all man in his quest for oneness with God and his struggle to lead the good life.

Rabbi M. J. Simones announces services at Tifereth Israel synagogue for Tuesday evening at six o'clock with "Israel's Eternal Journey" as the sermon subject. Wednesday morning services begin at seven o'clock with "A World in Turmoil" the sermon topic.

Rabbi N. H. Diamond of Temple Israel announces services for 7:30 p. m. Tuesday and 9:30 a. m. Wednesday. "Garments of Salvation" is the evening sermon subject and "A Yom Kippur Plea" for the morning. Memorial services are scheduled for 3:00 p. m., sharp.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

News that a new wax museum will be opened in New York seems to have been under-played in the newspapers, considering the interest it has stirred among the few million New Yorkers who have nostalgic memories of the Eden Musee, in West Twenty-third Street. And surely these memories must have been stirred all around the country. Nobody ever thought of coming to New York without taking the children to the Eden Musee.

Remember that policeman who stood by the door? You asked him something about the museum, and were annoyed when he did not answer and sharply repeated the question. Then you heard a giggle, perhaps from a small boy who had been fooled in the same way, and was enjoying your discomfiture.

There were all the great Civil War generals; Lee's surrender at Appomattox; De Soto discovering the Mississippi, the signing of the Declaration of Independence; and other famous scenes of history. Downstairs, in the Chamber of Horrors, there were portrayed the Chicago anarchists of the Haymarket bombing, bombs and all; the Nathan murder, the Changewater hatchet murders, scenes of torture by Indians, and all sorts of hair-raising and blood-chilling specialties.

It is a curious fact that back in the age of innocence we used to enjoy horrors more than we do in this supposedly less innocent day—just as innocent children are popped over the Brother Grimm and Hans Christian Andersen. As I remember it, there were no psychologists warning parents against giving their children the heebie-jeebies by taking them to the Eden Musee.

But now, the comparatively sweet and innocent child of "Snow White" troubles the child specialists, and many parents have been worried about her. I confess that she made me a bit uneasy, but youngsters I have talked to see to be quite undisturbed.

However, horrors are being played down, in the great wax exhibits everywhere, and of course that is desirable. When the London branch of Mme. Tussaud's Paris wax museum was rebuilt in 1923, after the fire of 1925, they cut out the horrors.

It was interesting to note that the new wax museum here will be established by the Musee Grevin, which is the owner and operator of Mme. Tussaud's Museum. This little Frenchwoman, who was Marie Grosbois, had one of the strangest entrance cues of anyone who ever

Action Simplifies Social Security's Employer Reports

New Order Eliminates Form
SS-3; Has Been Required
So Far

Further simplification of reports which employers must make under the Social Security act was announced today by William J. Michael, manager of the Social Security board's field office here.

The treasury department, Michael revealed, has abolished form SS-3, the employer's individual information return on employees who reach age 65 or die prior to reaching that age. Employers have been required to file this return with local collections of internal revenue within 15 days after the employee reached age 65 or died.

Michael pointed out that discontinuance of form SS-3 is the second recent major step in the program of the board and treasury department to simplify and reduce the number of reports required of employers under the federal old-age insurance program. Marked progress was made in this when these agencies worked out form SS-1a for the quarterly reporting of employee wages under the system. Form SS-1a combined three previous forms. It was put in use the past April for the report of employee wages covering the first quarter of 1938.

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 3.—With only a month of campaigning left before the ballots are cast in Pennsylvania's election on November 8, the state prepared for an influx of Democratic and Republican orators of national prominence.

The "zero hour" in Keystone politics is nearing.

Reports on Capitol Hill were that three members of President Roosevelt's cabinet would tour the state in behalf of the Democratic state ticket.

The president himself, it was said, would probably not appear, some said because of the European war scare, others said because of the current cloud hanging over Democratic officials who are charged by District Attorney Carl B. Shelley of Dauphin county with wrongdoing.

National Republican Committee Chairman John D. Hamilton will head the outside G.O.P. speakers, it was said, with others still in doubt.

For the Democrats, it was reported, the following will appear: Postmaster James A. Farley, national Democratic committee chairman; Attorney General Homer Cummings; Secretary of Agriculture

Wallace; Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, majority leader in the U. S. Senate; and Congressman David Lewis, recently defeated for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Maryland.

The legislature is all ready to recess until after the House investigating committee completes its work, which, at the present rate of the investigation, may be anytime between now and the end of the legislative session on November 30 or later.

In fact, the legislature has been ready to recess—presumably until after the November election—for some time, and it appears now that it's up to the state supreme court to say when.

Administration leaders are loathe to leave the legislature before the supreme court has handed down its decision as to the constitutionality of the grand jury laws.

The high court has given no indication as to whether that decision will come today, tomorrow, or next month. But members of the house and senate up for re-election object to having their campaigns broken up by appearances at the capitol for a two-day-a-week sessions and as a consequence may force an immediate recess before long.

Prothonotary and Clerk of Courts John A. Edgar, announces that one hundred and nineteen marriage licenses were issued during the month of September.

Judge W. Walter Braham has made an order discontinuing the term of common pleas court set for the week beginning November 14, there not being a sufficient number of cases ready to justify the calling of a jury. Two terms are scheduled in the meantime, one beginning October 10th and the other, October 17th.

John Habib, who has entered a plea in connection with an aggravated assault and battery case, came before the court for sentence on Saturday, but after some discussion over the case, sentence was deferred for further investigation. The alleged assault was committed while Habib was working on the WPA.

In the case of the commonwealth against the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, in which a preliminary injunction was granted in connection with a charge of selling sugar below costs, the defense has asked for additional time to file an answer to the bill in equity. The request was granted.

In the matter of the triennial account of Maud C. Miller, guardian of Thomas Holliday, in which exceptions to the account have been filed by Mrs. Lucy Holliday, mother of Thomas Holliday, the court has fixed Monday, October 17th as a time for hearing.

Motion for judgment for want of an answer has been granted by the court in the case of the First National Bank of Volant against C. B. White. In the case of the treasurer of the Shenango U. P. church, who is now Elmer Dinsmore against C. W. Hoss and J. Emerson Davis, judgment for want of an appearance has been granted.

In the estate of the late A. P. Moore, late of Jenkintown, Montgomery county, Pa., petition of Flora B. Moore, widow, for land to be set aside for her in New Wilmington, was granted in an order handed down by Judge W. Walter Braham. She is to get a one-seventh interest in the land in question.

In the matter of a petition of the county commissioners to sell a lot in West Pittsburg to Thomas De Monaco for $40, October 15 was fixed as a date for hearing. This is a lot taken by the county for taxes.

In an opinion handed down by Judge W. Walter Braham Saturday, a new trial is refused in the case of the commonwealth against John Woolsey. There were two cases against Woolsey in which he was charged with furnishing liquor to intoxicated persons. In one case the jury found him not guilty but pay the costs. In the other he was found not guilty on the first count of the indictment, but guilty on the second, that of permitting liquor to be sold on his place. It was owing to the conviction on this count that he asked a new trial.

Urges Citizens Of Pennsylvania To Prevent Fire

State Motor Patrol Cites Huge Loss Caused By Fire In Pennsylvania

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 3.—Commissioner P. W. Foote of the Pennsylvania Motor Police has appealed to every Pennsylvanian to cooperate with state and local authorities in observing fire prevention week from October 9 to the 15th.

In pointing out that last year in Pennsylvania more than 100 persons lost their lives in 15,000 Pennsylvania fires which caused a property loss of approximately $14,000,000, the commissioner said:

"This record alone should cause every citizen in this commonwealth to pause and consider the severe penalty inflicted by fire. The seriousness of fire loss is a challenge to every citizen to participate in a campaign against fire."

"Statistics reveal to us that the overwhelming majority of fire losses are preventable; they originate mainly by reason of carelessness and indifference on the part of the individual. It is, therefore, clearly before us that by eliminating the common hazards and exercising care and thoughtfulness every day with regard to fire, we have the factors entirely within our reach to curtail this unwarranted and needless fire toll."

Gambler Loses Both Ways Jury Decides

Tip On Hot Horse Arrives Too

pany Held Not Liable

(International News Service)

URBANA, Oct. 3.—Telegraph companies are not liable for damages because race horse tips "straight from the feedbox" are delayed and the consignee misses placing a winning bet, a Champaign common pleas jury has decided.

The jury returned a directed verdict for the Western Union Telegraph Company after Hugh Lefel sued for $337 he said he would have won it if it was from a Texas track on "Rare Ben" had been delivered in time. The horse won and paid $13,500 for $2, Lefel said.

Judge Marion B. Owen told the jury that Lefel had failed to prove there was such a horse as "Rare Ben," that he had raced, or that he had won.

The jurist refused to allow Lefel to prove these points by introduction of either racing papers or racing forms carried in daily newspapers declaring such evidence was "only hearsay."

What is your temperature today? Few people ask this question—unless someone is sick.

The body temperature is constant at 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit.

This temperature is maintained during good health.

The heat-producing and heat-dissipating processes are balanced.

This is regulated by certain nerve mechanisms.

Most of the body heat is supplied by the muscles.

The heart, never ceasing gives off a large amount of heat.

The contractions of various muscles provide much heat.

Heat is also continuously being lost.

Respiration, radiation, perspiration and elimination remove heat.

With a temperature of 98.6 degrees you feel about 100 per cent.

Northern Shrike Driven Out Of Gaston Park By Squads Of Birds

Under normal conditions, bird life and their clans so about their activities in a peaceful manner, which brought sparrows, robins, blue birds and even a humming bird responded to the danger signals. These birds flew under and over the shrike with their bills, ultimately drove it out of the woods.

This was vividly illustrated a few days ago when a great northern shrike flew into a dogwood tree, where a blue bird was feeding on the berries. The shrike's savage attack drove the bird out of the tree, and as it winged away it was relentlessly followed by its enemy.

The blue bird sought refuge in the shelter house in Gaston park. The shrike, not to be outdone by its intended prey seeking safety in the building, dove in and chased it out. By this time the hunted bird, full of fear, uttered distress calls, which brought sparrows, robins, blue birds and even a humming bird responded to the danger signals. These birds flew under and over the shrike with their bills, ultimately drove it out of the woods.

Mr. Fox states that the shrike is a bird that comes here in the fall, and spends the cold months in our woods and forests. It is about the size of a robin, and has a beak and talons similar to the hawk family. This small bodied bird carries within its breast a killing heart that in size equals the fierceness of the hawk clan.

It is known by many bird lovers as the butcher bird.

A few winters ago Mr. Fox heard quite a commotion among the black cap chickadees that surrounded a feeding station at the park and investigating, found a shrike attacking them. He picked up a club and endeavored to drive it away. The shrike became so enraged that it flew at Mr. Fox's head, knocking his hat off, thus showing how fierce they become when hungry.

It is gratifying to know that our woods do not harbor many bird killers in the feathered family, as it only consists of the owls, hawks and a few lesser killers.

Bob Feller Fans Eighteen Batters In Season Finale

Cleveland Rookie Heaver
Loses Game After Whiff-ing 18, Greenberg Has 58 Homers

PIRATES LOSE IN FINAL GAME

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Pennant races that ran true to the form which has prevailed in recent seasons were over today, with one of the outstanding highlights of the long and grueling campaigns reserved for the very last day.

This contribution to the American league race which turned dark with the early clinching of the pennant by the New York Yankees for the third straight time, was the record-shattering performance by Bob Feller, popper hurler of the Cleveland Indians.

Feller Sets Record.
Although he lost the opening game of a double-header with the Detroit Tigers by 4 to 1, Feller fanned 18 batters to break the major league standard of 17, which he previously shared with Dizzy Dean.

With his performance of yesterday, Feller clinched the strikeout leadership for the season, his aggregate being 240.

After surprisingly beating the Iowa farmer boy despite that sterling performance, the Tigers then went ahead and took the nightcap by 10 to 8. But in neither game could Hank Greenberg of the winners get a home run, and he thus finished his quest of a new record with a total of 58.

In another American league feature engagement, the champion Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox 6 to 1.

In other American league games, Washington beat Philadelphia 5 to 2, then lost the nightcap 4 to 2, and St. Louis beat Chicago 4 to 3 and lost a second game, 3 to 0.

Outstanding feature of the last day of the National league race was the breaking of another strikeout record, but the exact reverse of Feller's. In this one, Vince DiMaggio of the Boston Bees fanned four times against the New York Giants, and with that ran his total for the season to 129 for a new mark. The Giants won the game, 3 to 2.

The Cincinnati Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5 to 4.
The St. Louis Cardinals beat the newly crowned champion Chicago Cubs 7 to 5 and the Brooklyn Dodgers turned back the Philadelphia Phillies twice, 7 to 3 and 7 to 2.

Ellwood High Hands Defeat To Rochester By 21-0 Score Saturday

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 3.—Three touchdowns scored in a spectacular, thrilling manner by the Ellwood City high school football eleven against Rochester high at Lincoln field on Saturday afternoon paid back the valley blue and white in their own coin for last year's stinging 7-0 defeat and defeats of other years and so for the present the Rochester "jinx" is on the shelf. The score was 21-0.

Tommy Jones and his running mate, Acting Captain Jack Sharr, aided by a smooth functioning forward wall, were the scorers with Jones reaching pay dirt twice. In each case, Ben Keller's accurate toe cleared the crossbars.

Upwards to 4000 supporters of both teams filled the bleachers, attracted by the twin lure of perfect weather, with the blue of the sky sometimes blending with the blue of the Wolverines' uniforms, and to see their favorite pigskin devotees match their skill with a team of equal power. There were still those who weren't convinced that Ellwood has "something" this year despite their "story over Monday, and as the season progresses that feat is a coveted one. But after Saturday's performance, everyone agreed that if the Croft-Gills machine can continue its present pace, it will be up near the zenith when this year's performance becomes history late in November.

Though Ellwood made four first downs in the first period, they didn't score and mid-way in the period when Grissett blocked Jones' punt on Ellwood's 21, it looked as though the stage was set for a Rochester score but a pass intercepted by Fishermen spelled that notion in a definite manner. Fishermen, Ellwood's scrappy little center, is one of Ellwood's outstanding players and made many of the game's valuable tackles. Just before the period ended, Ellwood tried the spread but lost on the play and it was put away for more gullible teams.

Just after the half began Jones shot a 20-yard pass to Sharr, and it was a beautiful play with Sharr catching the ball in mid-air and fighting off a horde of Rochester tacklers near the remaining 20 yards for the first rally.

Five plays following the kick-off, Tommy Jones in a fake pass swept around left end, and then came the game's big thrill that brought the army of Ellwood supporters to their feet roaring applause, and with his teammates assisting to his aid with superb downfield blocking raced the width of the field and then straightened out his course for a 60-yard dash.

Tense fans held their breath for an instant, as once it seemed as though he was within the clutches of the seething Rochesterites, but as he swept them aside and the gods of the gridiron favored him, he crossed the last stripe unmolested. Keller's perfect placement kick added the extra point and Ellwood was in front 14-0.

Second Half.
After the customary rest period, Rochester came back refreshed and somewhat dominated the play in the third quarter but never in a scoring position. But they did give the local lads a scare as Jones fumbled a lead pass from center and lost the ball on Ellwood's 28. Weigle, a reserve quarter, was on his toes and intercepted a pass and Ernie Myers' boys' hopes of crossing the last stripe dimmed. Alert Dick Newton, Ellwood's half, also intercepted two of Rochester's aerials in the same period.

Ellwood's third touchdown followed a quick kick by Tommy Jones, putting the ball on the Rochester one. A fluke punt by Catane followed and the ball was on Rochester's 11 and then Tommy Jones started the game and sweep that worked so successfully before and he was over again and the game's scoring ended.

At this time, the second team replaced the varsity and they carried on in their usual capable manner. Deserving special praise was Lantz, reserve guard, who stopped the Rochester ball totter four or five times in succession. Robuck hit the line for nice gains of 15, 12 and 10 yards and showed a lot of speed and power. Rochester's famed passing offense was bottled tight by the blue and white and netted them no gain at all.

Outstanding in Ellwood's line was Ben Keller, a consistent player who was "in" on every play, and Joe Farkas, blitzer in the line and Catadese, fullback, were best for the losers.

Next Saturday afternoon Butler will be the attraction at Lincoln field. They have lost to New Castle and Har-Brock, tied with Rimersburg and won from Mars, the latter game being played last Friday night with a 20-0 score. Ellwood's other future opponents faced as follows: Beaver Falls lost to New Castle, New Brighton tied with Ambridge, Alliquippa lost to Donora, and Midland topped Monaca.

The deer is life sized and travels over the ground at a speed of 25 to 30 miles per hour. It is driven mechanically by motor and batteries and is just as difficult to hit as the actual running deer.

A telephone system will be used between the operator and the shooter line to keep the shooter informed where he is shooting and the score he makes. This activity is sure to be one of the big attractions of the day. Hunters are urged to bring their rifles, both large and small, and try the event.
